The takeaway is that someone modified the form (which makes it fraudulent) and completely changed it which drove the procedure we used to conduct investigations. It is not in line with DOE. I knew it didn't make a lick of sense to do what was being done. The form is supposed to be used page one first (dah) which is notification of an incident. Then an investigation is completed. Then page 2, Part II is completed and IF an infraction is issued to an individual, the individual signs it then. We apparently were hell bent on assigning responsibility and overlooked some basic principles, just little things-- like due process and civil rights.

At any rate, something good will come out of this. Too bad the carrot didn't work, but sometimes you have to use more impactful methods when common sense is AWOL.

Have a good trip. See you in 3 weeks.

Thanks, I'll take a look when I am not tethered to just a BlackBerry.

What are the page 2 differences?

I thought you might like to know. Apparently, BEA was using a modified version of the official DOE investigation form. Looks like my concern had more validity than people thought. I knew it didn't make a lick of sense to do what they were doing.

A DOE-HQ investigator provided me with the official DOE form 5639-3 which I attached incase you want to use the correct form during your investigations. There are several differences between this form and the one that BEA is using, especially on page 2.

Hope it helps.
