

DOE Curtails Non-Essential Travel Until Further Notice

April 14, 2020

The Department of Energy has directed that all non-essential and discretionary travel be curtailed until further notice. In general, the Department considers travel associated with nuclear energy-related research to be non-essential. Accordingly, please ensure that any travel funded under your cooperative agreement, including local, domestic, and international, is cancelled. If you believe that certain travel is essential, please contact the Contract Specialist for your award for a determination. No travel should occur without receiving such a determination in writing and in advance. The Department appreciates your cooperation during this uniquely challenging time.
