

Visiting Dignitaries

U.S. Deputy Energy Secretary Daniel Poneman (right) looks at a model of a plutonium heat source that is used on U.S. space missions during the Deputy Secretary's visit to the Idaho National Laboratory recently. Steve Johnson of the INL (left) and Deputy Lab Director Dave Hill (center) were the tour guides for Deputy Secretary Poneman.

Deputy Secretary Poneman was joined by U.S. Senators Mike Crapo (right) of Idaho, and George Voinovich of Ohio (center) during a visit to the nuclear hydrogen laboratory at the Bonneville County Technology Center, where the INL leases space. Researcher Steve Herring (far left) explains his work to the visitors.

Editorial Date August 19, 2009
By Bradley Bugger